Deyse doin' all der Chinks dey can fine dat weh! ' I was a while silent, not knowing what to say; and when I roused my head at last to speak, she got before me. " "Why, he dressed like a boy," replied Kenneth, hesitatingly. And Polly showed her sense in catering for a friend's material comforts: it was I who put her into the way of such good mannersnor do I let her forget them. You go over to the table, turn your back, and mix me a grog; that's a fair division of labour. "My patience, don't they look alike! " And he turned to the official in the booth: "These are the two Russian gentlemen who are returning from Mexico to the United States. He could not sufficiently give utterance to his regret that he had not himself found a clue to this. " It is a curiously human thing, and, upon my honour, not one I had designed, that when at last I stand in the twilight in the midst of a Utopian township, when my whole being should be taken up with speculative wonder, this man should be standing by my side, and lugging my attention persistently towards himself, towards his limited futile self. Head of T's an adventurous sort of chap, and of course he took the steamer. The victorious warriors who had followed Carthoris joined in the mad demonstration, and amidst the wild confusion and the tumult and the cheering, Dejah Thoris and I passed out into the gorgeous garden of the jeddaks that graces the inner courtyard of the palace of Kadabra. He came down, and, when upon the ground, he could see it no more, which grieved him sadly. Among Gorean musicians, incidentally, czechar players have the most prestige; there was only one in this group, I noted, and he was their leader; next follow the flutists and then the players of the kalika; the players of the drums come next; and the farthest fellow down the list is the man who keeps the bag of miscellaneous instruments, playing them and parceling them out to others as needed. He turned swiftly back to his room, threw on a coat, put his moccasins on over the soft caribou skin slippers, caught up his cap, and hurried back to the door. In a few days Bailey began to recognise some of the craft; in a week he knew the intimate history of halfadozen. We dined with some hospitable Gentiles; and visited the foundation of the prodigious temple; and talked long with that shrewd Connecticut Yankee, Heber C.
